

such as are issued by the Board of Health to physicians for making returns of the death of patients, was found today among the effects of Schmidt. This book, taken in connection with two photographs of a different form of death certificate, also used by physicians, found last night among Schmidt's papers, indicate to Inspector Paurot that the renegade agent was planning a series of murders, his plot including the disposition of the bodies of his victims in an apparently open and legal way.

"From what I have found in the possession of this man Schmidt and his partner, Muret," said the Inspector, "I would believe anything about them. There is no telling what forms of villainy Schmidt has been engaged in. His papers have given us fifty clues, any one of which is liable to turn up something new about his activities. His industry was amazing and his resourcefulness was wonderful. But I am unable to say now whether we caught him at the beginning, or at the end of a series of homicides."

OLD WOMEN WITH MONEY PROBABLY HIS PREY.

From documents found it is believed by detectives that Schmidt may have contemplated killing old women with money and getting possession of their fortunes. As a priest, he could gain their confidence, with poison he could hasten their end, and with the death certificates in his possession he could have them buried in a formal way without attaching any suspicion to himself.

The woman Helen Green, who lived at No. 30 West One Hundred and Ninth street and disappeared several months ago, has not been located by the police. Schmidt says he knew her casually. Ardent love letters written by her have been found in his papers. Inspector Paurot will not say he believes Helen Green met the fate of Anna Aumuller, but he admits intense anxiety to learn what became of her.

The death certificate blanks found in Schmidt's possession today have been sent to the Board of Health for investigation. Their discovery takes on added value from the fact that Schmidt had photographs of another form of certificate issued in the case of Robert Smith, sixty-nine years old, who died at No. 215 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street last April after a short illness, during which he was attended by a Harlem physician.

Schmidt, in his capacity of a priest of St. Joseph's Church, went to the Smith home to console the family. While there he stole the certificate, took it to a photographer at No. 215 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street and had two photographs made of it. Then he returned the original certificate, the Smith family not knowing that he had taken it away.

HELD ALSO "RETURN" CERTIFICATE TO HEALTH BOARD.

But the certificate such as he had photographed is not the only one a physician is compelled by law to make in the case of the death of a patient. One certificate is given to the undertaker, who takes it to the Board of Health in the routine work of a burial permit. This was the one Schmidt photographed.

At the same time the physician makes out another certificate known as a "return," which he forwards to the Board of Health in person. No burial permit is issued until the "return" is compared with the certificate forwarded by the undertaker. The "return" is a check on the undertaker's certificate.

A book containing ten of these blank "returns" was found in Schmidt's effects. Nobody but a physician of standing can get a book of certificates from the Board of Health. It is not known whether Schmidt stole this book or whether he had it made up after a form of a certificate he had stolen in the case of a person who had died.

At any rate, Schmidt had in his possession a photograph of one form and actual blanks of another form used by doctors in making returns of deaths to the Health Department. With these in his possession, he was in a position to present a forged certificate to an undertaker, send another forged certificate to the Board of Health and bury anybody he might want to put away.

There was something about the blank book that the Schmidt case when it comes to trial, which probably will be in October. It is practically settled that Schmidt's defense will be insanity. When the question is raised, Mr. Whitman will insist on a citizen's jury of twelve laymen, as in the Robin case. To have the issue determined by a commission of three would take too long, Mr. Whitman thinks.

If the insanity plea fails, the defense will then deny that the torso is that of Anna Aumuller. Alphonse G. Koebler, Schmidt's lawyer, says the prosecution will be unable to prove that it is, despite Anna Hark's identification by a note. He declares her testimony cannot stand in long under cross-examination. The police, however, don't anticipate any difficulty in convincing Schmidt, even leaving his confession out of consideration.

"Who never ate his bread in tears; Who never, through the dreary night, upon his pallet, weeping sat, 'Knows Ye not Ye Almighty Powers?'"

A postcard, addressed to "Rev. Joseph Schmidt, St. Joseph's Rectory, West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York," was received at the Tomb today. It had been forwarded from the rectory.

The card was dated Sept. 12 and was mailed in London. It was a picture card, carrying on the back a picture of Trafalgar Square. Written on the face was this message:

"My very best wishes. CATHLEEN O'MALLEY, Hotel Russell, London, W. C."

MURDERED GIRL MAY HAVE BEEN SHOT, EXPERT SAYS.

Acting Captain Jones, revolver expert of the Police Department, today made a thorough examination of the revolver found in the office of "Dr. P. Muret," No. 30 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street yesterday, and declared that the revolver, contrary to what Muret said yesterday, is in "excellent condition," and that it was not a "blow-off" gun.

The examination showed that the revolver, contrary to what Muret said yesterday, is in "excellent condition," and that it was not a "blow-off" gun. The examination showed that the revolver, contrary to what Muret said yesterday, is in "excellent condition," and that it was not a "blow-off" gun.

"Dr. Muret, the fake dentist, sent a long written tale of woe from the Tombs this afternoon. Some of his statements were:

"My fountain pen and money were taken from me at Headquarters and have not been returned although I have asked for my money repeatedly. Further, has my bank book been taken from me. Detective Casanova probably has it. Although I have $145 in the bank it would go far to ease my misery. The prison food does not agree with me."

"It is true that Inspector Paurot treated me with consideration and I am grateful. He may not have given the authority to his men, but he will not be able to deny that one of them hit me on the chest and the shoulder and knocked me against the wall of my apartment at No. 30 St. Nicholas avenue long before I was placed under arrest. You can imagine what happened to me when I was alone in Headquarters with one detective."

"I desire to state that I am not related to Schmidt. I have known him only since December, 1912. The fact that he was an ordained priest sufficed me to accept his friendship."

All that the river has given up of Anna Aumuller's body will be brought to New York today from Hoboken and placed in the Morgue at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street. If the present plans are carried out, Anna Aumuller will be taken to the Morgue and be made to look upon the body he cut to pieces. The police believe he will then give them what details he may have been holding back and complete their case against him.

New Jersey connection with the case ended last night with the inquest in Jersey City. Inspector Paurot testified as to Schmidt's confession and Miss Anna Hark, a friend of the dead woman, identified the torso by a note on the right breast. The Coroner's Jury of six returned a verdict that Anna Aumuller came to her death at the hands of Hans Schmidt, on or about May 2, and recommended that the exhibits, including the body and all other evidences, be turned over to the New York authorities. Coroner Schlemm congratulated the New York police on their fine work in the case.

Inspector Paurot's belief that Schmidt and Muret, the fake dentist, were closely related seems to be well founded. Dispatches today from Aschaffenburg, Schmidt's birthplace, state that it is believed there that Muret is Adolph Mueller, a cousin of Schmidt. He and Schmidt were close friends. Mueller lived at Mainz, where Schmidt went to school, and later went to Hamburg, where he disappeared. It is also known that Muret has been known as E. Stein, under which name he operated in England. Finger prints of both men have been sent to Europe for investigation.

MURET CHARGES POLICE BEAT HIM AT EXAMINATION.

Detectives were following a new clue in the vicinity of Englewood, N. J., today, working in conjunction with Chief of Police Titus there. They refused to talk about it.

In a new statement concerning his countering plans, Schmidt says he did not intend to try to pass any had money until he had made a large quantity of it. Then he intended to distribute it among the poor.

A systematic dredging of the Hudson in the vicinity of One Hundred and Fifty second street was begun this morning under the direction of Detective O'Neill in hope of finding the head of the Aumuller girl. It was near this point fishermen reported bringing up a quantity of human hair. Some of the detectives are openly pessimistic about the "clue." They do not regard it as likely that Schmidt threw the head into the river without wrapping it in something. He says he put a sheet and blanket around it, and weighted it with a stone. If he did, it is unlikely that a fisherman's hook could have brought any of the hair to the surface.

The police are depending on a report from the German police on Schmidt's finger prints to settle finally the question as to whether he is Hans Schmidt, the priest, or an impostor who in some manner came into possession of Schmidt's papers.

Judge Warren J. Foster has consented to hear the Schmidt case when it comes to trial, which probably will be in October. It is practically settled that Schmidt's defense will be insanity. When the question is raised, Mr. Whitman will insist on a citizen's jury of twelve laymen, as in the Robin case. To have the issue determined by a commission of three would take too long, Mr. Whitman thinks.

If the insanity plea fails, the defense will then deny that the torso is that of Anna Aumuller. Alphonse G. Koebler, Schmidt's lawyer, says the prosecution will be unable to prove that it is, despite Anna Hark's identification by a note. He declares her testimony cannot stand in long under cross-examination. The police, however, don't anticipate any difficulty in convincing Schmidt, even leaving his confession out of consideration.

150 YEARS FOR MURDER.

Judge Gives Record Sentence to Slayer of Woman.

ESTABLISHMENT, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Judge Edward L. McHugh in the District Court here today, accepted Justina Moya's plea of guilty of murder in the second degree, and sentenced her to the State penitentiary for not less than 150 years and not more than life.

Moya killed a woman at Willard three months ago, causing his victim's head with an axe during a quarrel.

Refused to Hear Tariff Protest.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Twenty-seven employees in the glove shops at Governor's, N. Y., today had side to the tariff conference room to plead with Representative Underwood and Senator Simmons for the retention of the Senate duty on gloves. But neither Representative Underwood nor Senator Simmons would receive the delegation.

THAW CONCERNED AS OVERCAST SKY PREVENTS OUTING

Bad Temper Allayed When Custodian Talks of Visit to Public Buildings.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 19.—An overcast sky, which indicated an approaching storm and the probability that he would be denied a promised auto ride, appeared to be Harry K. Thaw's chief concern when he awakened today.

The Mattawan fugitive and Chief Drew had planned another outing in the suburbs where they drove yesterday. Thaw felt better later when his custodian told him that if the storm kept the crowd of curious under cover he might be permitted to visit the State House and other public buildings, in accordance with his request of yesterday, which was not granted, as the sheriff thought the trip would attract a great throng and result in some unpleasant incident.

The usual large amount of mail was waiting Thaw and newspapers were piled high on his table when he appeared for breakfast. The published accounts of his own case were read as closely as ever. He has been much interested, too, in the air flights of William Thaw at Newport, though, as he remarked, jokingly, he nourishes no ambition to imitate them.

Comed continued to-day their preparation of the case to be submitted on Tuesday for breakfast. The published accounts of his own case were read as closely as ever. He has been much interested, too, in the air flights of William Thaw at Newport, though, as he remarked, jokingly, he nourishes no ambition to imitate them.

A squad of policemen remained on duty at the hotel to restrain the crowd that has gathered daily since the arrival of the prisoner-guest.

CHARLES H. HYDE GOES TO HOSPITAL FOR AN OPERATION

Had Planned to Meet Gaynor's Body, but Condition Forced Him to Give Up.

Charles H. Hyde, former City Chamberlain and prototype of Mayor Gaynor, was taken today from the Hotel McAlpin to the Post Graduate Hospital at Second Avenue and Twentieth street where an operation was scheduled to be performed this afternoon.

It was stated by Mr. Hyde's surgeon that the operation is not one to cause alarm to the patient or his friends.

Mr. Hyde went to the hospital last Friday to see specialists about a complaint that was causing him considerable pain. He was told that an operation was necessary, but he decided to wait until after the Gaynor funeral. He took rooms at the McAlpin, and had planned to go down the Bay to meet the body of the late Mayor this morning, but found himself unable to carry out his plan.

Mr. Hyde's friends are alarmed over his condition. The former Chamberlain of the late Mayor's household, who was taken to the hospital today, is said to be in a very serious condition. He is said to be in a very serious condition. He is said to be in a very serious condition.

J. P. Morgan's Will Filed in Hartford.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 19.—The will of the late J. Pierpont Morgan was filed for probate in the Hartford Probate Court today. The action was purely formal. Charles A. Goodwin and A. Torrance filed certified copies of the will.

Casket Containing Body of Mayor Gaynor Being Borne Into House in Brooklyn

MAYOR'S BODY IS LANDED; HIS SON RUFUS COLLAPSES

Strain Since the Tragic Death of the City's Executive Proves Too Much for the Young Man.

Within an hour after the time the body of William J. Gaynor was placed in a darkened room of the Gaynor town house at No. 29 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn, early today, Dr. J. W. Parrish, the Gaynor family physician, was hastily summoned to administer to Rufus W. Gaynor, the son of the late Mayor, who had accompanied his father on the voyage that was to be his last.

The young man was in a complete state of exhaustion and collapse. Having borne up bravely under the extraordinary strain of the last ten days—beginning with the hour on Wednesday, Sept. 10, when he found his father dead in his deck chair aboard the Baltic—young Gaynor's last ounce of nervous resistance sped when he saw the body of his father finally laid on a flower-banked catafalque in his home. Then the great weight of responsibility that had borne down on him at the time of the Mayor's death, during the transfer of the body at Liverpool and on the voyage back was lifted and the collapse came.

YOUNG MAN IN PRACTICAL COLLAPSE.

Dr. Parrish was in the Gaynor home about half an hour. When he came out he told the reporters of Rufus Gaynor's condition. "The young man is completely exhausted by the long nervous strain," said Dr. Parrish. "I found him practically in a state of collapse. All that he needs, however, is a long period of rest and quiet and he will be himself again."

"Mrs. Gaynor is very tired, but she is bearing up well under the ordeal and did not need my attentions."

Harry Vinnet and W. Seward Webb, Rufus Gaynor's two brothers-in-law, who went down to meet the Lustrina, and who walked on either side of young Gaynor when he passed down the pier to the automobile in waiting for him at Pier A, where the body was landed, remained with him in his room at the Gaynor home. His younger brother, Norman, also assisted in quieting the young man.

Absolutely quiet settled upon the street passing the house where the dead Mayor lies, from the minute when the front rank of the escorting troop of police cavalry turned the corner from Atlantic avenue into Eighth avenue. Policemen, acting under orders of Capt. Bernard Hayes of the Bergen street station, and stationed at the four corners of the block wherein the Gaynor house is situated, turned heavy vehicles into side streets and cautioned automobilists not to sound their horns. Four men were placed on fixed post in front of the house of death; this guard will remain until the body is removed to the rotunda of the City Hall to-morrow evening.

The body of the Mayor was brought back to the city over which he had ruled in the mists of a gray morning. The funeral train, which bore the body of the Mayor, was transferred to the steamer Correction of the Department of Correction and brought slowly up the bay to Pier A at the Battery, where it arrived near 7 o'clock. Mayor Kline, Robert Adams, Mayor Gaynor's secretary, Police Commissioner Waldo, Dock Commissioner H. A. C. Smith, Dr. Lederle of the Board of Health and other members of the dead executive's official family accompanied the body to the Brooklyn home.

At Police Headquarters to-day Commissioner Waldo announced that since he had been designated to make all arrangements for the great funeral cortege that will march from City Hall to Trinity Church on Monday and from the church over Brooklyn Bridge to Borough Hall after the services, all civic bodies desiring a place in line should immediately consult with him and receive designations. He expects between 15,000 and 20,000 in the funeral procession.

The hearse drew up in front of the Gaynor home at 8 o'clock. Capt. Bernard Hayes of the Bergen street station, in which district the house is located, had twenty-five uniformed men at attention on the opposite curb and a uniformed man at each of the four corners of the block.

Without ceremony the casket, covered with a rumpled flag, was lifted on the shoulders of ten brawny policemen and firemen and carried into the front room.

Mayor Gaynor's body will remain at the family home in Brooklyn until to-morrow afternoon. Just before dark it will be transferred to the City Hall, where, from 8 o'clock Sunday morning until sunset it is to lie in state.

Only the closest friends of the family will be admitted to the Brooklyn home while the body remains there. Just before its removal to the City Hall private funeral services will be conducted at the residence, the Rev. Dr.

Frank W. Page, formerly rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, officiating.

2,000 UNIFORMED POLICEMEN TO BE IN LINE.

The Gaynor family will take their last look at the dead before the coffin is moved from the home. At sunset Sunday evening the casket will be closed for the last time. The guard of policemen and firemen, the members of which will be relieved at intervals, will remain on duty during Sunday night and Monday morning.

The funeral procession will form in line in the streets adjacent to the City Hall at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning, and an hour later the procession will start down Broadway to Trinity Church.

The van of the long column will be 2,000 uniformed policemen, 5,000 on foot and 400 mounted. They will be followed by former President Taft and the other honorary pall bearers, after whom will come the Citizens' Committee, headed by former Mayor Seth Low and former Mayor George B. McClellan. The funeral car and carriages bearing the members of the Gaynor family will be next in line.

One regiment of infantry and one squadron of cavalry from the State troops will be among the organizations that will compose the rear portions of the funeral column. In deference to the wishes of Mrs. Gaynor, who desires simplicity, the offer of a military escort from Governor's Island and other army posts of the city has been respectfully declined.

BISHOP GREER TO CONDUCT SERVICES AT CHURCH.

The procession will pass down Broadway to Trinity Church, where the services are to be held. Bishop Greer will conduct the services and will be assisted by Suffragan Bishop C. S. Burch and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity.

The order of services will be:

Burial Psalm.
Lesson—1 Cor. xv, 29-46.
Antiphon—"Yea, though I walk in the darkness, Thy Light is before me."
Hymn—"Lead, Kindly Light."
Committal.
Hymn—"Nearer, My God, to Thee."
The hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," were selected by Mrs. Gaynor.

There are in Trinity Church seats for 85 persons. The vestry has retained twenty.

The Gaynor family and immediate friends, the honorary pallbearers, the Citizens Committee and the Committee on Arrangements, the heads of the city departments, the members of the Board of Estimate, Justices of the Supreme Court of the First and Second Departments, the City Magistrates and Municipal Court Justices, and the attendants to the Supreme Court in the Second Department while Mayor Gaynor was a Justice in that department, will all have to be accommodated in the remaining seats.

Admission will be by card only.

FOLK GIVES UP $35,000 INCOME FOR NEW JOB

State Department Solicitor Says His Chautauqua Lectures Bring Him That Amount Yearly.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 19.—That he is sacrificing a $35,000 yearly income from Chautauqua lectures alone to become solicitor of the State Department was the statement of Ex-Gov. Joseph W. Folk when he returned here today from Washington. His new salary is $5,000 a year.

He said he was undecided whether he would do any Chautauqua work while he holds that position, but added that he did not see any improbability in Secretary Bryan lecturing during his vacation time.

SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomachaches, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative," they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

Why Do Auto Bearings Wear in Spite of Oil?

TRY to run your car without any lubricants and what happens? Every bearing will shriek like a lost soul till friction ruins it. Put in grease or oil and what happens? The car runs without squealing, but, even so, somehow the bearings wear. Why?

Because steel cannot be polished to absolute smoothness. The brightest, smoothest looking bearings are full of little microscopic holes and protruding points. It is these grinding over each other that creates friction. Oil or grease by their very nature can only smear these over, make them slippery. They still wear and break off.

But there is one lubricant that absolutely obliterates these microscopic roughnesses. Dixon's selected flake graphite will fill these holes and build up a smooth, oily veneer around the little protruding points until the whole bearing is smooth beyond description. No other graphite has this quality. Dixon's selected flake graphite is the only graphite produced that has the peculiar thinness and flatness of flake, a toughness and elasticity that will make it build up and not adhere to itself, ball up or pack. Dixon's Graphite Automobile Lubricants are the only automobile lubricants made that contain this rare form of graphite flake.

Why? Because the Joseph Dixon Crucible Co. are the only graphite workers in the world who have facilities for producing this peculiar form of graphite flake free from imperfections. That's pretty strong, but it's a fact.

We suggest that you get acquainted with this line by first trying out Dixon's Graphite Transmission and Differential Grease No. 677. Talk it over with a Dixon dealer; he knows just what you need for every part of your car.
